

Strategy Statement

The American Crystallographic Association (ACA) will actively respond to the needs and opportunities of structural scientists in North America by pursuing innovative partnerships, by adhering to our fundamental commitment to provide educational and research experiences to students and young scientists, and by supporting life-long learning and career development.